Repose to the rescue

When a bespoke seating solution was required for a property being revamped by the BBC's DIY SOS: The Big Build team, the show's production team turned to Repose Furniture.

Working with the production team, Helena Elcocks, National Sales

Manager at Repose, suggested the best solution was the company's versatile C-Air, a rise recliner available in a range of sizes with an option of six different back styles.

Discussing the donation, Lisa Wardley, Repose's Managing Director, said: "I would urge anyone who is contacted by DIY SOS to get involved.

"It was a hugely rewarding experience for everyone here at Repose and I am delighted that we were able to help DIY SOS complete their latest project."

The episode featuring Repose will be aired on BBC1 later this year.

RETAILER KEEPS SHOPMOBILITY SERVICE ALIVE IN HEREFORD

Following the closure of Hereford Shopmobility at the end March, new retailer Mills Mobility has taken over the Shopmobility's subscription list and will continue to offer the service at its current rates.

Owner Greg Mills says he is keen to keep the service available for local people and has confirmed any existing annual memberships will be replaced with a free lifetime membership with the New scheme.

The company says it will be investing heavily over the coming months, replacing the scooters from the old service with a fleet of new scooters and also offering boot scooters to allow access to a greater area.
